ABSTRACT

Time efficient methodology for investigating a sample system using electromagnetic wavelengths which are not absorbed by oxygen and/or water vapor during evacuation or purging of a substantially enclosed space in which is present the sample system, followed by using wavelengths which are absorbed by oxygen and/or water vapor after the evacuation or purging is sufficiently completed.